Forecasts Cambodia Vote Will Be Close

WASHINGTON (AP) — The No. 2 Senate Republican said Friday opponents of proposed restrictions on future U.S. operations in Cambodia are about ready to drop delaying tactics and let the measure come to a vote.

In doing so, Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan conceded one reason is Pentagon pressure for $300 million in military sales authority which would lapse June 30 if Congress doesn't pass the legislation by then. "There is a problem there," he said.

But because of the large number of amendments still pending, final Senate action is unlikely for about two weeks.

By that time, virtually all U.S. forces are expected to be out of Cambodia, although proponents of the restrictions in the Cooper-Church amendment contend this makes little difference since they seek to bar a repetition of the present operation.

Griffin said he feels President Nixon's letter endorsing a pending amendment by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., will be very helpful and that a close vote on it is in prospect.

The Senate agreed to vote next Thursday.

Byrd's amendment would specifically authorize presidential action, if necessary, to protect U.S. forces in Vietnam—including a further U.S. assault into Cambodia—and Nixon said "it goes a long way toward eliminating my more serious objections to the Cooper-Church amendment."

"I think that we've got a chance of winning on that," Griffin said of the Byrd amendment. "It probably turns on a small handful of votes."

Cooper-Church supporters remain opposed to the Byrd amendment despite efforts by its backers to describe it as offering a chance for an accommodation. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said it would largely emasculate the amendment he co-sponsored.

After a vote on the Byrd amendment, Griffin said there will be a move to grant the President's request to revise Cooper-Church so that the United States would be able to give financial support for operations in Cambodia by other Asian nations. Thailand has already announced plans for sending volunteers to assist the Cambodian government.

Griffin said negotiations are under way with Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., the other main Cooper-Church sponsor, on this point.

Another 160,000 Out Of Work Unemployment Climbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economic pinch forced another 160,000 workers out of jobs in May, boosting the total unemployed to 4.1 million in the sharpest continuing jobless climb in a dozen years.

The rise pushed the jobless rate from 4.8 per cent to 5 per cent of the work force.

"That's a fairly rapid increase in unemployment," said Assistant Commissioner Harold Goldstein of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. He referred to this year's rise of 1.3 million jobless in five months.

All of the unemployment increase in May was among workers who lost their jobs rather than new entrants in the labor force, blue-collar workers in manufacturing and construction were hardest hit.

Employment, which usually rises in May, dropped instead by 320,000 to a total of 85.8 million.

The Labor Department's report also said average wages for some 45 million workers rose 2 cents an hour to $3.20 and $1.06 per week to $18.72, but that the sharpest rise in living costs in 20 years had more than wiped out wage gains the past year.

The buying power of the average worker's paycheck dropped seven-tenths of one per cent.

"The fifth consecutive month of sharply rising unemployment in the face of unchecked inflation is testimony to the complete failure of the administration's economic policies," said AFL-CIO President George Meany.

The leader of the 13.6 million workers in the labor federation called on Congress to direct the Federal Reserve Board to impose credit controls to pump money into businesses that will create jobs and discourage borrowing for speculation and overseas investments.

The employment report also said the average weekly work week continued downward, falling to 37.2 hours. In manufacturing it dropped to 39.9 hours, lowest in eight years. Overtime work dropped further to 2.9 hours, down nearly a full hour since a year earlier.

Insured unemployment, which covers about half the jobless, rose sharply from 3.1 to 3.6 per cent, totaling 1.7 million workers, nearly double the total in May of last year.

Construction unemployment, including the hard-hit housing industry, rose to 11.9 per cent, double the rate of a year ago, and manufacturing unemployment was up from 3.2 to 5.2 per cent over the year.

The Labor Department report said the jobless rate of men rose from 3.2 to 3.5 per cent or a total of 1.4 million in May and the rate for women climbed from 4.4 to 5.1 per cent to a total of 1.2 million. The rate for teenagers declined from 15.7 to 14.3 per cent for a total of 776,000.

All the May jobless rise was among white workers, whose unemployment rate rose from 4.3 to 4.6 per cent. The rate for Negroes and other minority groups dropped from 8.7 to 8 per cent.

Draft Raiders Convicted

CHICAGO (AP) — Ten anti-war demonstrators, some of whom say they were "culturally insane," were convicted Friday of destroying valuable Selective Service System records in a raid on a draft board office.

The U.S. District Court jury of seven men and five women began deliberating just before noon and reached its verdict within three hours. All 10 defendants were convicted on all four counts of the indictment.

Judge Edwin A. Robson granted a motion to revoke the bonds of seven of the 10 defendants present in court on the grounds they are a menace to the community. The bonds of three other defendants were revoked earlier after they failed to appear in court. He said he would be negligent in his duties if he allowed them to remain at large "to wreak the same havoc" elsewhere in the nation.

In denying defense motions to grant bond, the judge said it is "only a step" from burning draft records to burning buildings. The defendants' actions

"amounted to anarchy," he said.

An attorney representing four of the defendants maintained they were innocent because their views on the Vietnam war and racism are different enough from those held by the rest of American society to constitute cultural insanity.

In his instructions to the jury, however, Judge Robson declared that an individual's political beliefs are no basis for disobeying the law.

Arrest warrants were issued for the three other defendants, the Rev. Nicholas J. Riddell, 40, of Milwaukee, a Carmelite priest; Miss Linda J. Quint, 22, of Chicago, and Charles Muse, 21, of Roxbury, Mass., after they failed to appear in court near the end of their trial.

Eighteen persons were arrested May 25, 1969 during the raid on a Southwest Side draft board office but three were dismissed because they were newspaper reporters observing the demonstration.

Four defendants who failed to appear at the start of the trial were severed from the proceedings.

Edward Hoffmans, 32, of Iowa City, Iowa, the other defendant, was declared mentally unfit to stand trial after a psychiatrist testified for the government that Hoffmans showed symptoms of a schizoid personality. Hoffmans, who repeatedly had refused to rise for the judge, was committed to a federal mental institution. A higher court stayed the order, however.

The 10 persons convicted admitted during the month-long trial that they had participated in the raid and destroyed the draft board records by pouring paint on them and placing them in a bonfire.

The four defendants who claimed they were "culturally insane" were Father Riddell, Miss Quint, Edward Gargan, 19, and William Durkin, 20, both of Milwaukee. Their attorney argued they were insane "because they believe our most cherished institutions are being perverted."

Plan Hearing For Hijacker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arthur G. Barkley, who backed his cockpit ransom demands with a razor and pistol, appeared Friday to have passed at least part of a government-devised test intended to keep potential hijackers off planes.

Meanwhile, the husky, 49-year-old ex-bread truck driver from Phoenix sat in a suburban city jail, charged with air piracy. A preliminary hearing in federal court is set for next Wednesday. He has been denied bail. Air piracy is a capital offense, carrying a possible death penalty.

There was a general, gratifying ring to official and passenger comment on the unusual decision that led to the shootout with Barkley and his being wrestled into arrest. This was a switch in the annals of hijacking where appeasement for safety's sake has been the rule.

The airport test devised by the Federal Aviation Administration has two parts: A face-to-face seizure of airline counter agents to spot certain, undisclosed, behavioral giveaways; and a boarding gate detector which homes in on ferrous metals to find concealed weapons.

Trans World Airways spokesman John Corris said that at Phoenix, where Barkley boarded the TWA jet Thursday morning, the detector "was not in use at the gate." However, he added about the visual seizure, "The profile was in use. All agents have been instructed in it."

Rough figures from the FAA says 24 persons have been turned away out of some quarter-million passengers carried by the three airlines using the system since last October.

The detector alone is not enough, says the FAA, since it picks up everything metallic and roughly half of all passengers have on them some metal objects. But the two tests in combination drastically reduce the potential suspects, the FAA says, and it is an extremely effective barrier.

Barkley hijacked the stretch-jet 727 over Las Vegas, N.M., TWA said, ordering the crew and 51 passengers through a seven-hour ordeal that included two landings at Dulles airport and the wounding of pilot Dale Hupe.

In a series of radio messages from the plane Barkley demanded $100 million in small bills and was "very, very upset" when he discovered he did not get it all during a stopover at Dulles, said Billy Williams, the TWA pilot who took the first batch of money, $100,750, aboard.

Throughout his radio transmission Barkley rambled on about the Supreme Court and the President. It was learned Barkley had lost a $471 tax claim to the government, and his wife said, "He went all the way to the Supreme Court and they gave him the runaround."

Williams, in a news conference said he was convinced Barkley "would destroy the money, destroy the aircraft and

North Korea Claims It Has Sunk U.S. Spy Ship

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea claimed it sank a "heavily armed" U.S. spy ship in the Yellow Sea Friday. The U.S. Navy in Washington declared, quoting Pacific Fleet headquarters: "The U.S. Navy had no ships of any kind operating in that area."

This made it appear that the North Koreans could be talking about the seizure of a South Korean navy vessel by North Korean gunboats in the Yellow Sea, announced earlier by the South Koreans, who said their vessel was fired upon.

The official Korean Central News Agency in North Korea said the spy ship "intruded deep into the coastal waters" about 11:30 p.m. Friday to conduct reconnaissance.

The KCNA dispatch said: "Officers and men of the navy of the Korean People's army instantly sent to the bottom of the sea the enemy's armed spy ship which intruded deep into the coastal waters."

It said the ship was sunk off Haeju, in the Yellow Sea on the western coast of North Korea about 50 miles south of the capital, Pyongyang.

Earlier, the South Korean Defense Ministry reported one of its navy craft with 20 crewmen was seized by two Communist patrol boats and taken to the North.

KCNA said the U.S. ship crossed into North Korean claimed waters as "the U.S. imperialist aggressor army is markedly intensifying grave armed provocations" against North Korea along the demilitarized zone. The DMZ, established by the armistice of 1953, separates North and South Korea.

The Communist news agency also said the sinking of the "spy ship" came after the U.S. Army "fired tens of thousands of shells and bullets" at North Korean posts in the western and central DMZ sectors last Wednesday.

"Following this, the U.S. imperialist aggressor army infiltrated at around 1:30 p.m. on the fifth (June 5) a heavily armed spy ship under the cover of fighter planes and warships into the sea off Haeju, the coastal waters of the northern half of the republic, to conduct reconnaissance," KCNA said.

In Seoul, Brig. Gen. Roh Young-suh, spokesman for the South Korean Defense Ministry, said the North Koreans fired on the South Korean vessel in what he termed a "premeditated attack." He did not say whether the fire was returned or if there were casualties. There was no word on the condition of the crew.

North Viets, Cong Near Phnom Penh Enemy Poses Grave Threat In Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — Cambodian troops fought back against light resistance Friday to retake Set Bo, 10 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. But a senior officer said strong enemy forces on this front still posed the gravest threat to Cambodia since hostilities broke out in March.

Elements of a North Vietnamese and Viet Cong regiment drove the Cambodian forces out of their last foothold in the village during the night and pushed about a mile to the north, Associated Press correspondent John Wheeler reported from Set Bo. This was the enemy's closest approach to Phnom Penh.

Reinforced by a paratroop battalion, the Cambodians began a counterattack. In heavy fighting 4 paratroopers were killed and 17 wounded. Then later in the day, enemy forces withdrew to the southwest leaving only snipers in the burned-out village.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong also were on the move in northern parts of the country. The Cambodian high command reported the loss of Lomphat, capital of Ratanakiri Province 200 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. The fall of Lomphat strengthened the enemy forces' control over their supply lines well north of where allied troops are scooping up their bases in eastern Cambodia.

Fighting continued in Kompong Thom, capital of the province of the same name 80 miles north of Phnom Penh. This appeared to be an extension of enemy efforts to secure his supply lines of rivers and roads. Cambodian fighter-bombers flew repeated strikes at enemy lines.

The Bangkok Post quoted the Thai army leader, Gen. Praphas Charusathien, as saying North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in unknown strength had reached the Cambodian border opposite Thailand's Udorn Province. This is about 200 miles north of Phnom Penh.

When enemy forces opened the battle for Set Bo two days ago, Cambodian officers said they thought the object was to get the arms and food from the battalion headquarters there because of their loss of supplies to the allied offensive farther east.

A Cambodian intelligence officer said Friday, however, intercepted enemy radio transmissions showed the object was to seize Takhmau, about eight miles south of Phnom Penh proper but considered part of its outskirts. Takhmau is the capital of Kandal Province, which surrounds Phnom Penh.

Strong Cambodian reinforcements, including tanks and planes, were dispatched to the front. The government forces now assembled there seemed to preclude any easy enemy victory, Wheeler reported, although Cambodian officers expected a continuation of the fighting.

Villagers in Set Bo said many enemy soldiers were killed from mortar fire and air strikes, and were carried away.

Intelligence officers now say the forces of the Communist command have large caches of food and munitions farther southeast along the Bassac River and definitely were planning a major drive.

If they can seize Takhmau, officers said, enemy troops may launch rocket attacks on Phnom Penh.

The government also announced it had shut down the airport at Angkor Wat, scene of historic ruined temples north of Phnom Penh, and flew out all tourists. The hostess of a French plane returning to Phnom Penh said there was sporadic fighting near the airport. Since the closest North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces last were reported 60 miles away, any fighting there probably involved Cambodian Communists, known as Khmer Rouge.

In Saigon, a Viet Cong defector said a May offensive across South Vietnam was postponed because of the March 18 ouster of the Cambodian chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, and the allies' Cambodian push. He added that the allies drive against enemy supply bases had been highly effective.

Lt. Col. Nguyen Van Nang said the Communist Command diverted the planned offensive "against Cambodian troops with the intention of overthrowing the (Premier) Lon Nol government and bringing Sihanouk back to power."

Nang reported he saw 16 Red Chinese advisers helping with the planning of the Tet offensive of 1968 when he met with the Communist command's general staff.

Nang, who says he defected to government troops May 20 because the Communist Command's way of running the war "is not reasonable," spoke through a South Vietnamese military interpreter at a news conference.

His appearance came a day after the arrival of a 13-man White House fact-finding team to assess the effect of President Nixon's decision to send U.S. troops against enemy bases in Cambodia.

The U.S. Command reported American casualties in all Cambodian operations to date were 260 killed and 988 wounded.

It said only "light and scattered enemy resistance" was reported overnight in Cambodian border areas where U.S. and government forces are operating.

CAMBODIAN YOUTHS wave the victory sign as tanks roll forward. More heavy fighting is reported around the village of Set Bo, ten miles southeast of Phnom Penh, and in the central Cambodian provincial capital of Kompong Thom.

Editorial Comment

No Judicial Shortcuts

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger came to the Supreme Court wearing the robe of the conservative, or moderate, interpreter of the Constitution. There is reason to believe that many conservatives welcomed him as one who would surely push for judicial support of "law and order" at almost any cost, perhaps even of cutting a few procedural corners.

The chief justice has made it clear that he has no use for that view of the law's function. Procedural shortcuts in the name of safeguarding society do not set well with him, and that is something for which to be most grateful.

Chief Justice Burger had occasion to speak on this subject at the annual meeting of the American Law Institute in Washington. Some of what he said is eminently worth reiteration.

"Some say," he remarked, "that we must 'crack down,' that we must restore tight discipline. In periods of stress there are always some voices raised urging that we suspend fundamental guarantees and take shortcuts as a matter of self-protection." Then he added the clincher on the basis of national experience: "In those few periods of our history when we suspended basic guarantees of the individual in times of great national stress, we often found, in retrospect, that we had overreacted."

Burger struck an optimistic note. Observing that we find ourselves in a difficult time of "turmoil and strife and violence," he nevertheless expressed confidence in the nation's legal structure. It provides, he said, "a resiliency to tide us over and enable us to meet any crisis as it arises."

We accept that as an article of faith, and are profoundly grateful that it has been articulated by the chief justice. The points Burger made deserve thoughtful reflection by all who seek to improve society but wish to preserve freedom by judicial means while the process of reform continues.

Right To A Speedy Trial

The old saying that justice delayed is justice denied finds clear and vigorous affirmation in the Sixth Amendment. "In all criminal prosecutions," it says, "the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial . . ."

The U.S. Supreme Court made this specifically binding on the states in 1967. Now the Court has unanimously made the point again, and even more firmly, in reversing the conviction of a Florida truck driver named Robert Dean Dickey. His trial on charges of holding up a motel was delayed for an unconscionable length of time, seven years.

Speaking for himself and all his colleagues, Chief Justice Burger took note of the legal facts of life involved.

As the chief justice observed, the right to a speedy trial is not an abstraction. Aside from the consideration that the accused should not be kept in long uncertainty as to whether he will be found innocent or guilty, certain realities are involved: witnesses may die, or at best their recollection of events may diminish; records may get lost over a long period of time. Such factors urge the importance of prompt adjudication.

It is good to have the Supreme Court speak so clearly on this subject. This new pressure on the states may raise the cost of the judicial process, but it will be money well spent. Our system of justice is crippled to the extent that the Sixth Amendment command for a speedy trial is not implemented.

Demo Candidates Asked Views

Leadership Fight Focuses On Reform Proposals

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—House Democrats vying for leadership positions are going to be asked for their views on congressional reform proposals before the issue becomes overshadowed by a scramble for the majority leader's post.

Reps. Henry S. Reuss of Wisconsin and Charles A. Vanik of Ohio, two reform minded Democrats say they hope to determine where the various candidates stand on such issues as seniority, powers of committee chairmen, and the practice of holding secret committee sessions.

Reuss and Vanik want to pin the candidates down on reform issues early in the campaign so their positions will be clearly known when the majority leader's post is filled next year.

The leadership fight was touched off by Speaker John W. McCormack's announcement that he will retire at the end of this session. Oklahoma Rep. Carl Albert now holds the majority leader position, but is expected to be elected speaker when the new Congress convenes next January.

The two congressmen have identified four areas of reform in which they will seek the views of the candidates:

—The election of committee chairmen by the Democratic caucus, which consists of all Democratic members, or some other alternative to the seniority system which now automatically elevates the member with the longest service.

—Changes in House legislative procedures to provide that all votes taken are on the record. Most key votes now are taken by head counts without the member being recorded.

—The need for democratic procedures in committees so chairmen will not be able to exercise arbitrary powers.

—The abolition of all secret committee sessions except when required by national security interests.

At present, five members have announced as candidates for majority leader: Reps. James G. O'Hara of Michigan, Morris K. Udall of Arizona, Hale Boggs of Louisiana, Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois and Wayne L. Hays of Ohio.

O'Hara and Udall are leaders in the Democratic Study Group, an informal organization of liberals that has been pressing for Congressional reforms.

Boggs is currently the Democratic Whip, the party's number three leadership position behind the speaker and majority leader.

Rostenkowski, a protégé of Chicago mayor Richard Daley, is now chairman of the Democratic caucus. Hays, a barbed-tongued debater, has never held any leadership position.

Fem Libs, Count Your Blessings

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Foreign News Analyst
Even affluent advocates of radical feminism see women as the "most exploited social class" in capitalist society. Feminism will become "a central issue in American life" within the next few years, warns an editorial in the journal Women's Liberation.

Female activists of the upper middle class—unhappy with life in their "air-conditioned nightmare" and increasingly resentful of "male supremacy"—are even convinced that only through revolution will they achieve equality with men. "Full emancipation," they believe, can be realized only in a "classless society."

Yet a closer look at the "classless" states of the East will soon reveal to the members of Women's Lib that they harbor illusions.

No doubt women in the democratic West have many justified grievances, but their status under the free enterprise system is incomparably superior to that of their sisters in the Marxist-Leninist world.

For instance, more than half of the labor force in "socialist" Russia is female. According to the Kremlin's propagandists, this proves that "full equality of sexes" exists in the Soviet Union.

But even Moxdow's authoritative Literary Gazette conceded recently that women employed on construction sites, in factories, mines and the railways "usually do the heaviest work while men operate the machines."

The Communist revolution, the Marxist-Leninists claim, "put an end to the denial of women's rights and opened up before them wide possibilities for active participation in public work."

On paper this is true. Men and women are equally entitled to further training for the improvement of their qualifications. But under Soviet economic and social conditions the dual burden of sharing the breadwinner's role and looking after the family means that women usually have neither the time nor the energy to spare.

In fact, in no Western capitalist country—certainly not in the United States—do women perform heavy physical work on such a scale as in the Communist countries.

Moreover, in no capitalist country is there a greater economic and social gulf between the wives of the "upper-class" Communist bureaucrats or professional women and ordinary working women as in the Communist states.

Russian women, especially the unqualified, are frequently unaware of their underprivileged status. Only a minority, educated, see the lack of true equality of the sexes.

But even their dissatisfaction is seldom expressed in the form of social protest but rather in personal tensions and a strained family atmosphere.

The Communist authorities are increasingly worried by the increase in broken marriages and the alarming drop in the birth rate. In 1960 the national average was 24.9 births per thousand of the population, but by 1969 the figure had fallen to 17.

For many years after the revolution it was considered that the Communist state could take over the mother's role in the rearing of children and thus remove the obstacle to full-time employment for women.

But even many die-hard Marxist-Leninist sociologists now point out that the collective upbringing of children is no real substitute for family environment.

Ann Landers:

Raps 'Mother Role' Decision

Dear Ann Landers: On occasion you have admitted you made a mistake and changed your advice. I hope you will do so again. I refer to your counsel to the woman who didn't want children and married a man who said he didn't want children either. Seven years later he changed his mind. She was furious and signed her letter "Betrayed." You advised counseling, called her "immature and selfish" . . . and said she would probably lose the guy if she didn't grow up.

Well, she might be immature and selfish, but she is also honest enough to admit the mother role is not for her. And what's so terrible about that? I see many women who would be better off if they had made the same decision—and so would their unwanted, ignored children.

The most pressing problems in the world today are overpopulation and pollution. And the second problem is linked to the first. It is a known fact that people are the greatest polluters. The last thing the world needs is more people. So I pick up the paper and see where Ann Landers tells a gal to get counseling so she will be able to tolerate kids she doesn't even want! . . . Dear Lorrain: Stop crying. Harvard will take you. They turn down only live people. Tell your lawyer, your doctor and the members of your family. NOW.

There are new laws based on the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act which has simplified donating organs—as well as the entire body. The donation card system is considered a legal instrument. The card is witnessed, signed and carried at all times. It designates which organs the carrier wishes to donate. Although this is not an easy topic for most people to dwell on, a great many individuals are overcoming their squeamishness and putting the welfare of humanity first. The gift of sight to a blind person or additional years of life to someone with kidney failure is an endowment beyond compare.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 15-year old girl who is worried about my 17-year-old brother. A girl in my class is crazy about him and she won't let him alone. To look at this sex bomb, you'd think she was 20. Her parents are divorced and she lives with her dad in a nifty apartment. Her dad is never in town. She drives his car all over and has a perfect setup—including a well-stocked liquor cabinet.

This tramp chases my brother night and day and he seems to enjoy it. His attitude is "What do I have to lose?" I worry about him. What can I do?—Little Sis

From the results we don't get from the boiler room when the heat is on the fritz, we can but conclude we have a truly stationary engineer.

If you come to see us, keep your temper; we have all we can do to control our own.

And, while we have it in mind, you might say that this office manager is a stationary

A Needle In Arm Is Worth Two In . . .

I am writing this as I sit in a hospital bed. I am beginning to think I have a hopeless case on my hands. The prognosis is definitely disheartening. Oh, I'm not talking about my physical condition I came in here only for some tests. What is deteriorating is my determination to remain a person who, although hospitalized, still has power over her daily habits. Truth is, my will isn't deteriorating—it's in the last throes.

I have been in hospitals before and I've always been cheerful upon arrival, scattering sunshine as I wended my way through the corridors. In the past I would go hopping about being helpful, strewn sweet admonitions wherever I went. ("Let ME wind up that bed, nurse. Goodness sakes alive, you must be worn out by this time of day.") The psychology is, if I am co-operative, they will love me. And probably take extra care in getting all the sponges out before closing the incision.

So much for psychology. I concluded that if they have rules, I have rules. Sitting here in my new pink nightgown, I have reached another conclusion. The big difference in their rules and my rules is that their rules are obeyed.

I posted my regulations at the door of my room. I started with a few general rules — "Remember The hand that pushes the call button writes the checks" and went on to the more explicit, such as, "If awakened before 10:30 a.m., this patient will go for your throat."

Excuse me. The nurse is here. "Look," I say to her "evidently you didn't read Rule No. 7. It says, 'Patient is not to be interrupted while reading or writing except for emergencies.'"

"We're going to have our shot," she replied.

"Aha Rule No. 3 You didn't read it either Do you mean BOTH of us are going to have a shot or . . ."

"Us? We are to give us our left arm? O.K., nurses."

"Let's put our pen down and we'll put our book over here and turn our lights out."

"Don't be ridiculous. We, I mean, I know it's only nine o'clock and sometimes I stay up until 2."

She is gone now. And I distinctly heard her say to the aide in the hall, "Number 23 is one of those. She sure had me fooled."

"Just goes to show," the aide said. "Even the ones wearing pink hair ribbons can turn on you."

Just goes to show indeed. Obviously, neither of them read my Rule No. 10 which states, "Staff members will refrain from discussing patient while pretending she is not there."

The lights in my room just went off. I suppose they have a master switch somewhere.

Well, I shall continue writing by the glow of the little night light there by my door. The night light is situated slightly to the left of where I posted my rules. Say, that doesn't look like my set of rules. The have fastened something over my poster. It's a placard. It says, "Do Not Disturb." It is signed, "The third floor staff."

If you have been getting the impression from these articles that the negative double of one spade is the greatest invention since the wheel, take a look at today's hand.

West's spade overcall was somewhat on the sleazy side. If North had passed East and West might have found their way to a successful three no-trump, an unsuccessful four spades or a part score. We'll never know because North did double. East might have redoubled to show some spades and good general strength, but he decided to jump to three spades.

This put it squarely up to South. He had a round opening bid with four hearts in addition to his five-card suit. He wouldn't have bid more than two hearts if he hadn't been jammed, but he wasn't going to be shut out. He bid four hearts.

West passed and East made one of those "money from home" doubles. It looked, too good to be true.

West opened the ten of hearts. He knew his partner could stand a trump lead. South struggled manfully but the best he could do was to take six tricks for a nice 1,100-point loss.

The chief blame for the tragedy rests on North's shoulders. He had four hearts but his hand was far too weak for a negative double. In addition his main strength was in the opponent's suit, not his own. You should have at least seven high-card points for a negative double and with a minimum seven or eight you should have all or nearly all of those points in your suits, not the enemy's.

South gets some blame. He didn't have to bid four hearts and East has to get some credit for his inspired three-spade bid that gave South the opportunity to take the disastrous plunge.

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South

You, South, hold:

♠ 2 ♥ A K 5 4 ♦ Q 8 4 2 ♣ K J 9 7

What do you do now?

A—Just bid six hearts. Even though your partner is trying for seven you should show your two kings and leave it up to him.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of opening one spade your partner has opened one club. What do you respond?

THE DOOR through which hundreds of laughing brides and grooms have made their exit in a shower of rice.
THE DOOR through which a thousand babies have been brought for holy baptism.
THE DOOR through which tens of thousands have entered to worship God and left to serve mankind.
THE DOOR which opens and closes countless times — always leaving its mark on the souls of men and women.
Today before THE DOOR boy meets girl. No better time. No better place.
Will their friendship blossom into love? Will they one day share that shower of rice — and bring their own child to the font?
THE DOOR cannot answer such questions.
But THE DOOR can open for them, as it does for all men, the Way to God's blessing in our dreams and our hopes.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, JUNE 6—Born today, you are highly receptive to the ideas of others and, though you would like to do things on your own in your own way, you are not at all averse to listening to the suggestions of others, adapting what you can to your project, storing away the rest for use some other time. Your ability to do just an idea to a project or, if impossible, a project to an excellent idea is little short of marvelous and will do much to insure your success in all your enterprises.

You will have to develop the habit of investigating deeply all those things which appear on the surface to be profitable and worthy of your attention. You are somewhat inclined to take things at face value and must, therefore, be on your guard against judging a book by its cover, a person by his outward appearance, a project by its obvious aspects. What is needed is the long look and a prejudging of consequences.

Though you are quick to lend the favor of your good judgment to others when they ask for it, you are not at all one to interfere in another's business without a specific invitation. You have definite opinions but will not interfere with them without being asked to do so. Such an attitude makes your views all the more listened to when they are expressed.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Sunday, June 7
GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—It is the ultimate usefulness of a thing which will determine whether or not it is accepted by others. Present something utilitarian.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—A good day for discussing your vocational preference with one who can help you decide how to prepare for your future.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Learn today at the elementary level. If you attempt to understand the finer points of a new project today you may become lost.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—A do-it-yourself day. Anything you wish to see done well, you had better take the time to do yourself. Others may slip up.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Morning worship does its part in raising your spirits to such a level that it is possible for you to take a new hold on the present.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23)—Be wise; accept what others tell you of your worth. Otherwise, you may not have the courage it takes to begin anew and at once.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Consult with others as to what you must do first if you would rectify a recent error in judgment. Be alert.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)—Don't try to alter the things that are influencing you in a way you would rather not; alter your own reaction to them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)

—Proceed as you have begun. An excellent time for taking a friend aside and persuading him to support your view.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—The more vividly you remember your past the more accurately you will be able to outline your future. A sharp wit pays off.
ARIES (March 22-April 20)—If you would be better pleased with the results of your efforts, be more energetic in the application of talent.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Another's records may not please you as to content—but you would be wise to accept them in regard to accuracy. Save objections.

Soviet Space Ship Orbits For Fourth Day

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soyuz 9 spacecraft with a two-man crew completed its fourth day in orbit Friday and approached the Soviet record for time in space.

Cosmonaut Andrian Nikolayev said in an interview carried by the official Soviet news agency Tass that no other spacecrafts will be sent up to join Soyuz 9.

"This spacecraft has instruments and equipment which... make it possible to approach other ships and dock with them," he said, "but our program does not set such aims for the crew. Ours is a solitary flight."

Tass reported cosmonauts Nikolayev and Vitaly Sevast'yanov were feeling fine and carrying out their program. This has consisted largely of medical and technical experiments.

The Soviet space endurance record was set in June of 1963 by Valery Bykovsky, whose Vostok 5 remained up just 54 minutes short of five days. The Soyuz 9 will exceed this if it is kept in orbit beyond 2:06 p.m. EDT, Saturday.

The purpose of the current flight, in keeping with Soviet practice, has not been announced and no indication has been given of how long it will last.

Hyndman Gains Rematch Against Defending King

NEWCASTLE, Northern Ireland (AP)—Bill Hyndman of Philadelphia continued his cliffhanging play Friday with a final hole 2 up victory in the British Amateur Golf Championship to gain a rematch in the final against defending champion Michael Bonallack of England.

After earlier victories on the 19th, 20th and 21st holes and then a 3 and 2 triumph over Scottish Walker Cupper Charlie Green in Friday's quarterfinals, the 54-year-old Hyndman birdied the final hole to beat Ireland's Brian Hoey in the semifinals.

Bonallack, who beat the American insurance broker 3 and 2 in last year's title round, reached the final with a 6 and 5 rout over Ron Napier of South Africa and a 2 and 1 victory over Bruce Critchley of Britain.

The 36-hole final ending the gruelling week-long test over the Royal County Down 6,928-yard, par 71 course, will be played Saturday.

Hyndman, refusing to bow to fatigue or pressure, held a one hole lead entering the 54th-yard final hole of his match against Hoey, who hit the green with his second shot while Hyndman landed in the bunker.

However, Hoey took three puts to get down in par while Hyndman socked his third shot within four feet of the cup and closed out the match with a birdie putt.

He had less trouble against Green, taking a two up lead after six holes. That was cut to one as Hyndman made the turn in 35, but he increased that to two up with four holes remaining and closed the match on the 16th.

Bonallack, seeking an unprecedented third straight title and his fifth in 10 years, had a much easier time as he needed only even par for 13 holes against Napier to gain an early lunch break.

Critchley gave him a rougher time, but the 35-year-old Bonallack sank a 20-foot putt for a birdie on the 17th hole in the afternoon to end that match.

Critchley had made the quarters with a 2 and 1 victory over France's Didier Charmaul, and Hoey beat John Glover of Ireland 4 and 3 in his first match.

Bylveen, called up from Evansville of the American Association to replace the injured Luis Tiant, walked only one and fanned seven. He gave up a run to the first batter he faced when Lee Maye hit a home run on a 3-2 count.

Manager Bill Rigney lifted Bylveen in the eighth when four of the next five scheduled hitters for the Senators were left-handed. Ron Perranoski finished up.

The Twins scored a run off loser Casey Cox in the first inning when Cesar Tovar walked, stole second and scored on Tony Oliva's single.

Personality Is Scratched In Belmont

NEW YORK (AP)—Personality, heavily-favored to add the Belmont Stakes to his Preakness victory, was scratched late Friday afternoon from this third leg of the Triple Crown because of a cough that began earlier in the week.

Trainer John Jacobs, making the announcement in the press box at Belmont park, said he felt "that in the horse's present condition he could not do his best. In fairness to the fans and racing, I want to make the announcement now."

Jacobs said Personality had a nasal discharge Wednesday and he thought then something might be wrong, but he hoped that it would pass. The horse had a slight fever Thursday and a cough with another nasal discharge, but he galloped Friday morning with no sign of a cough or fever.

Jacobs explained that because of racing's anti-medication rules, with the closeness of the race, he couldn't give Personality any medication for the cough.

The departure of Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Personality, a 6-5 favorite as an entry with High Echelon, reduced the field to 10 3-year-olds for the 1½ mile test, and made it a wide open affair.

My Dad George, who was the second choice at 5-2, took over the favorite's role at 2-1, followed by High Echelon at 3-1.

Eddie Belmonte, who rode Personality to his victories in the Preakness and in last week's Jersey Derby, was to have been aboard the colt here.

He apparently now will switch to Naskra, for whom he also was nominated in case Personality was scratched.

Personality was to have started from the outside position with High Echelon in the fifth post. Raymond M. Curtis' My Dad George, runnerup in the Kentucky Derby won by Dust Commander, will leave from the third slot under Ray Broussard.

Dust Commander is not entered. El Paso Ranch's Aggressively and Braulio Baeza will start from the inside post.

Others entered, and their riders, were Dansar Stable's Delaware Chief, Angel Cordero Jr.; Thomas Fleming's Needles n Pens, Dave Kassen; Briardale Farm's Stop Time, Garth Patterson; Brookmeade Stable's Climber, Jacinto Vasquez; Lawrence P. Boyce's Hark The Lark, No Boy; Wendell, P. Roso's Son Excellence, Pete Anderson, and Her-Jac Stable's Naskra.

The gross purse will be $158,750 with $115,000 going to the winner with 10 starters, each of whom will be carrying 126 pounds.

Post time is approximately 5:30 p.m. EDT and CBS will televise from 5-6 p.m., with radio coverage from 5:25-5:45 p.m.

Menke's Single In 11th Inning Tips Phillies 8-7

HOUSTON (AP)—Denis Menke's one-out, run-scoring single in the 11th inning gave Houston an 8-7 victory over Philadelphia Friday night extending the Astros' winning streak to four games.

Menke's hit to left field came off loser Dick Selma, 4-2, who issued a leadoff walk to Jimmy Wynn. Doug Rader sacrificed Wynn to second and the center-fielder scored on Menke's blow.

The Astros had tied it at 7-7 in the ninth on Norm Miller's sacrifice fly after Ron Stone had given the Phils a 7-6 edge with a three-run double in the eighth.

The Phillies down 4-1 after six innings, also scored three runs in the seventh.

Are You Batty Or Confused?

Simple Quiz Tests Normalcy

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Have you been worrying lately about whether you are mentally normal?

If you are really interested in learning whether you're batty or just confused, simply answer the following questions:

Do you believe that the Internal Revenue Service deliberately writes its tax forms in bafflegab so that, no matter how you fill them out, you are still at the government's mercy?

When you thought no one would see you, did you ever as a child pull a cat's tail just to see what would happen?

Are you convinced that you had a greater respect and a deeper love for your father and mother than your children have for theirs? But in your heart of hearts, wouldn't you grudgingly agree that one reason for this perhaps, is that you had better parents than they do?

Don't you get a bigger kick out of getting something for nothing than you do by working or paying for it?

When someone gives you your comeuppance in public, do you brood for three days trying to think up the perfect squelcher that would have put him in his place?

Are you annoyed if a fellow you lend your newspaper to on a commuter train quickly completes the crossword puzzle you were unable to fill out?

And you fret now and then, too, don't you, over the melancholy realization that you are really about as indispensable at the office as a paper cup?

It kind of peps you up, though, doesn't it, to see how much more your old friends seem to have aged than you?

And when you attend a college reunion, don't you get a snobbish feeling of smugness to note that four of your classmates who got better grades than you are now driving cars smaller and three years older than yours?

Do you feel a bit guilty because you can't spell Phnom Penh, Kuala Lumpur and Vientiane, and are unable to tell off-hand which countries they are in? Don't you sometimes get so mixed-up that you wish our country didn't have a foreign policy at all—if it does?

Our domestic policy has you a bit puzzled, too, eh? Isn't it hard for you to figure whether, basically, our best goal is to integrate the desegregation or segregate the desegregation?

If you answered yes to all of them, you are as normal as the vast majority of your fellow Americans, muddled but still functioning.

If you answered no to all of them—well, have you ever considered seeking a government job?

Mike Garrett Among 1,038 Draft Picks

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball completed its annual summer free agent draft Friday with a total of 1,038 selections including the surprising pick of Mike Garrett, Kansas City football star, by the Los Angeles Dodgers' organization. Garrett said he plans to quit football after the 1970 season.

The total fell short of the record of 1,169 in June, 1967 and also was below the 1969 figure of 1,147. Apparently, the big leaguers felt the 1970 crop was a little below par.

Baltimore was the most active team with 67 selections, including 57 in the regular phase of the draft, covering high school and college graduates and 21-year-old athletes who had not been drafted previously. The Orioles also picked 10 players in the secondary phase, involving those previously drafted but not signed.

The regular phase lasted 60 rounds with the Pittsburgh Pirates the only team to go all the way. In the late stages only the Pirates and Orioles were drafting.

Al Campanis, general manager of the Dodgers, sent a buzz through the meeting hall in the Americana Hotel when he announced that the Dodgers, on behalf of their Bakersfield, Calif. team in the California League, were drafting Garrett.

In Los Angeles, the Dodgers' public relations office said, "he (Garrett) came to the Dodgers about a week ago and told Al Campanis he was not interested in playing football after his current five-year contract with Kansas City expires."

Garrett, a 5-foot-9, 200-pound running back, was an outfielder at Southern California in his college days. He was drafted by the Dodgers before he signed a football contract but went back into the pool as far as baseball was concerned when he didn't sign a baseball contract. Garrett, 26 years old, was No. 781 in the 1970 baseball draft.

Garrett said in New York he will announce his plans to quit football after the 1970 season at a Monday news conference, and will negotiate with the baseball Dodgers when free.

The first player picked in the secondary phase was David Kingman, a pitcher-outfielder from Southern California, who was selected by the San Francisco Giants.

Kingman, 6-6 and 210, throws and bats right-handed. He suffered a broken arm this season and switched to the outfield with great success.

"We rate Kingman way above average," said Jack Schwarz, farm director of the Giants.

Southern California still is involved in the NCAA playoffs. And Kingman can't be signed until that has been completed.

As was the case in Thursday's first round, several relatives of former or current baseball players were drafted. Bill Crowley, son of the Boston Red Sox's public relations man, was picked by Detroit. Crowley is a third baseman at Holy Cross.

John McLish, an outfielder in an Edmond, Okla. high school, son of Cal McLish, Montreal pitching coach, was taken by the Expos, who also grabbed Roy Smalley, son of the former big league infielder. The younger Smalley is a high school shortstop in Los Angeles.

The New York Yankees drafted Keith Metheny, a pitcher from Kent, Wash., son of the former Yankee, Bud Metheny. San Francisco took Ben Heise, a shortstop in Vacaville, Calif., brother of the Giants' infielder Bobby Heise.

All of the draft selections gave the clubs only the exclusive negotiating rights with the players who go back into the pool if they refuse to sign. However, no other club can negotiate with them in the meantime.

Bowman Steps Down, Arbour Heads Blues

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Defense-man Al Arbour, a 15-season veteran of the National Hockey League, embarked Friday on a new career with his selection as coach of the St. Louis Blues.

Arbour, captain of the Blues since selected in the 1967 NHL expansion draft, replaces Scott Bowman, who remains as general manager.

Bowman, 36, has coached the Blues since November of 1967 and directed them three years in a row into finals of the Stanley Cup playoffs, serving the final season in the dual role as coach-general manager.

He constructed a 97-73 record, winningest among NHL West Division clubs, and guided the Blues to a 24-22 mark in the playoffs.

"I think I made the decision to give up coaching toward the end of the past season, when I could see that other general managers were going out and watching amateur talent," Bowman said.

"I felt that the two jobs had become just too much. You reach a time in your career when you have to make decisions like this. I've had my thrills as a coach; now I hope to have my thrills as a general manager."

Bowman, a former supervisor of amateur talent in the Montreal Canadiens system, said the Blues selected Arbour as coach because of the 37-year-old player's leadership.

Golf Lessons Slated At YMCA

Instructed by Farrell Mitchell, the program will carry students through basic golf rules, club familiarity, stance, grip, swing, and balance. Students will also be taught the fundamentals of courtesy and etiquette of the game.

Although there are no age limitations, students of grade school age will only be accepted in the course if their parent or parents are also registered. The deadline for registration is Saturday, June 13.

Lessons will be taught on the YMCA golf practice area. The program is free to YMCA members, and $6 to non-members. All students are to bring a 4, 5, or 6 iron to the classes.

Illinois High School Baseball Tournament Semifinal
Morton East 5, Chicago Lane Tech 1 (Championship)
Morton East 7, Bradley-Bourbonnais 3 (11 innings)

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Morton East scored four unearned runs in the top of the 11th inning to defeat Bradley-Bourbonnais 7-3 Friday to win the 31st Illinois State High School baseball championship.

The four extra innings made the title game the longest in tournament history. It was the Mustangs' fourth state crown after they had won it in 1943, 1952 and 1961. They closed the season with a 23-4 record and an 18-game winning streak.

The Mustangs advanced to the finals with a 5-1 victory over Chicago Lane Tech in the morning semifinal while Bradley, making its first trip to the big show, moved up with a 5-4 decision over Elgin.

Bradley closed out as runner-up with a 19-8 record and with its first year coach, 23-year-old Don Dunlavy, insisting that he had been fired several weeks ago when his team had been struggling along with an 8-7 mark.

Dunlavy said he didn't know if the school board would reconsider now that he had brought the team this far along in the state meet but added that he understood they already had hired another baseball coach. Dunlavy also is an assistant in football and wrestling and it was believed the school policy was that a coach could not be in more than two sports.

A fielding error by pitcher Gene Kanaga who had done a terrific relief stint from the fourth inning on, and two errors at third base opened the doors for four Morton East runs.

Only one run was driven in and that was by Art Grzeskowiak's single. He also had singled home a run in the third as Morton East cut its deficit to 3-1.

The Mustangs tied it with a pair in the fourth with the aid of two more errors and Rich Flasz's sacrifice fly.

Bradley scored a run in the first inning on a double by Kanaga and singles by Mike Peters and Bob Spence. The Boilermakers got two more in the second as Ed Liesenfelt tripled and scored on Bryant Fahrow's single. Another run was walked across.

In the most sensational play of the day, Morton East filled the bases in the eighth after two out and Gary Olmstead went in to pinch bat. He smashed a towering drive towards the right centerfield fence which Spence managed to hang onto although colliding with centerfielder Liesenfelt.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Clarence Gaston drove in two runs with a double and single in leading the San Diego Padres to a 3-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night.

Gaston's single to right with Jose Arcia at second base in the seventh broke up a duel between Dobson and Mike Torrez. Earlier, the Padres' center-fielder had sent his club ahead 2-1 with a double behind a walk to Steve Huntz.

The Padres, on a recent hitting tear, broke in front 1-0 in the first inning on a walk to Huntz and Nate Colbert's two-out double.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Right-hander Ron Morrison pitched a three-hitter and Mike Schmidt stroked a two-run homer to power Ohio University to a 7-0 win over Southern Illinois Friday night in the NCAA District 4 baseball tournament.

The Mid-American Conference champions, scoring 30 victories in one season for the first time, smothered the Salukis under a 14-hit attack to remain the only team in the double elimination playoffs.

Morrison, running his record to 4-0, did not permit a hit until the fifth inning when shortstop Gene Rinaldi singled to center field.

Southern Illinois left hander Jerry Paetzold absorbed his third loss in eight decisions, giving up four runs and 12 hits in four 2-3 innings.

Southern Illinois earned another shot at the Bobcats by nipping Notre Dame 1-0 in the second game Friday night. The Salukis and Bobcats will play at 5:30 p.m. Saturday and if Southern Illinois wins the first game, a second contest would be played at 8:30 p.m.

Junior right hander Bob Eldridge eliminated the Irish on a brilliant two-hitter. He struck out 13 and walked only four to run his record to 5-1.

Southern Illinois got its run in the eighth on a single by third baseman Ken Kirkland, a single by Eldridge, a sacrifice and a Notre Dame error.

The Irish finished with a 17-14 record. Lefty Jim Phelps was the losing pitcher and ended up 1-3.

BROWN CO. BAGS 2 FROM HAMILTON

HAMILTON — Dick Ingram tossed a one-hitter and Steve Flynn a three-hitter as Brown County captured a West Central Conference twinbill from Hamilton, 5-3 and 8-2, Friday afternoon.

Mike Pritchard and Bob Snyder each drove in a pair of runs in Brown County's decisive five-run fourth inning of the opener.

Ingram was three-for-four with a home run and three RBIs and Pritchard and Butch Sorrells each had a pair of hits in the nightcap.

Brown County now stands 7-10 overall and 4-4 in the league, to Hamilton's 7-10 and 0-6.

Cubs Rip Marichal And Giants By 12-8

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs bombed Juan Marichal and three successors for 16 hits in a 12-8 victory over the San Francisco Giants Friday. Four Giant errors contributed to Cubs' triumph.

In the sixth inning after the Cubs chased Marichal—victim of four unearned runs—Willie Mays collided with Bob Taylor chasing Johnny Callison's fly, jolting the ball out of Taylor's hands and felling the 39-year-old Mays.

Mays spurned a stretcher brought on the field and walked off under his own power with bruised ribs and a slight finger

cut. He did not return to the game.

Callison's gift double with two-out kept alive the Cubs' second four-run inning of the game. It was followed by Ron Santo's two-run homer, off Frank Reberger, who wild-pitched across the first run in the Cub sixth after replacing Marichal.

Jenkins yielded homers to Ken Henderson in the second and Willie McCovey in the third. Bradley's Knaga Most Valuable For Tournament

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Gene Knaga, senior shortstop-pitcher for runnerup Bradley-Bourbonnais was named most valuable player Friday for the Illinois State High School baseball team by writers and broadcasters covering the tournament.

The all-tourney team was headed by three players from champion Morton East — second baseman Mike Bartowski, third baseman Joe Genna and outfielder Jim Caffarello.

In addition to Knaga, Bradley also landed outfielder Bryant Farlow, first baseman Greg Easterbrook, and pitcher Bob Spence.

Others on the team were outfielder Henry Iannotti of Chicago Lane Tech, catcher Ed Rockensock of Elgin, and pitcher Stan Kerby of Mounds-Meredian.

Suspects Clubhouse Is Bugged

CHICAGO (AP) — Charlie Fox, manager of the San Francisco Giants, said he held a team meeting in his hotel room here because he suspects the clubhouse at Wrigley Field might be "bugged."

"Maybe the Lion (Leo Durocher, Cub's manager) has the visiting team's clubhouse bugged," Fox told the San Francisco Chronicle's Bob Stevens after the meeting Thursday.

The Giants opened a series with the Cubs Friday, losing 12-8.

Fox said Bill Faul, a former Cub pitcher, told him that Durocher seemed to have inside information on how opposing pitchers would pitch to the Cubs.

"Faul said that when the Cubs held their meeting—or even during the playing of the game itself—Durocher would tell his hitters exactly, precisely and down to the minute detail, how the other club's pitchers were going to work on them," Fox said.

Faul, who was with the Cubs when Durocher became manager in 1966, was farmed out to Phoenix Thursday by the Giants.

Murcer, Michael Guide New York To 10-1 Runaway

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Murcer drove in three runs with a pair of homers and Gene Michael also had three runs batted in, leading the New York Yankees past the Chicago White Sox 10-1 Friday night for their fourth consecutive victory.

Right-hander Mel Stottlemyre, backed by an 11-hit attack, breezed to his fifth victory against four setbacks. He scattered five hits in going the distance for only the second time in 13 starts.

The Yankees clipped Jerry Janeski, 4-3, for three runs in the four innings he worked, then tagged reliever Gerry Arrigo for four in the fifth.

ATLANTA (AP) — A ninth-inning leadoff home run by Coco Laboy snapped a tie and sent Montreal to a 3-2 triumph over Atlanta Friday night, ending the Expos' losing streak at 11 games.

Laboy's second homer of the season came off veteran reliever Hoyt Wilhelm, 2-2.

Says Owners Negotiated On Clause Before Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — John Gaherin, the labor relations negotiator for the major league club owners, testified in the Curt Flood case Friday that the owners had negotiated in good faith in an attempt to modify baseball's reserve system before the suit was instituted.

Gaherin also characterized the relative bargaining strengths of the clubs and the players in negotiations "as about as equal as any situation can produce."

Gaherin pointed out in testimony for baseball's defendants in the $3 million antitrust suit that the owners had recognized their obligation to bargain collectively with the players over the reserve system during 1967.

"Did the owners ever assert it was not a subject for collective bargaining?" asked attorney Sandy Hadden.

Gaherin then said there had been a period when the two parties engaged in a joint study and, finally, in August, 1969, the Players Association had asked that negotiations be opened on the subject of the reserve clause and related rules.

Gaherin said the owners "were shocked by the extent of the proposals" made by the Players Association because of what he said would be the "obvious harm they would do to baseball."

He said those proposals included a provision for a baseball player to gain free agent status after three years service; a reduction in the number of players a team could reserve; a salary arbitration procedure, and a provision that no trade could be made without a player's consent.

He said negotiations had ended when Flood, who objected to being traded to Philadelphia by St. Louis without his consent, brought the suit in which he is challenging the legality of baseball's reserve system.

Under cross examination Gaherin admitted that the owners never had put forward a proposal to modify the key provision of the reserve system—the option renewal clause that binds a player to the club that signs him until he is traded, sold or released.

He also agreed that no other business contained such a contract between employer and employee but took exception with attorney Jay Topkis that the form of that contract put a player in "servitude."

Gaherin also said under cross examination that the owners had made no specific proposals to change the option renewal clause or any other of the matters in which the Players Association made formal proposals.

Baseball's defendants are expected to call one more witness before resting, an economist.

Flood's side likely will call Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players' Association, and the organization's attorney, Dick Moss, as rebuttal witnesses before the case winds up Wednesday with former club owner Bill Veck a possibility as the last witness for Flood.

Country Home in Pike Tour June 14th

PITTSFIELD — Five homes are included in the 6th annual Home Tours, being sponsored next Sunday, June 14th, by the Pike County Historical Society from 1:30 to 6 p.m. Above is the country home of the James Yokem family, a mile east off route 54, at Summer Hill (on gravel road.) The structure was erected in Civil War time and expanded in 1904. The home is owned by Ray Williams and sons. For many years this residence was the Jessie Shaw home. The Yokems collect pieces of Americana, bottles, books, quilts and Sears catalogs, dating from 1949. Wallpaper in the front hall and 2 of the bedrooms in the 12-room home are finished with the wallpaper put on when expanded in 1904.

A German immigrant, Johnny Kern, made the walnut and oak, with cherry paneling, staircase. The cherry wood came from trees on the Shaw farm and was hand carved in 1872 by Kern for Jessie Shaw's parents, Harry T. Shaw and his bride, Bernett Yokem. The panels are put together with screws. Much of the woodwork in the home is hand carved, also made by Kern.

Other features include a Victorian fireplace in the dining room, attached woodshed, old water cooler and an expandable antique halltree.

Williams Home
The brick home of Mrs. David Williams, Sr., at 415 East Clare street in Pittsfield is a spacious seven-room dwelling constructed in 1963. Furnishings included some selected antiques and others, "just old" with sentimental value. The L-shaped sunken living room, off a black and red tiled entrance, has full-length windows and knee-high fireplace. The natural Bedford stone wall was built by a Jacksonville craftsman who designed its unique pattern. In the dining room a long shadow box type china case hangs under wide windows to about four feet from the floor. This holds choice glassware and china. Refreshments will be served to callers at this stop.

Among the interesting pictures is a painting by Mrs. James Miles of the workshop of the late David Williams, once located on the lot west of this home and presently the residence of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Bailis.

Dawson Deans
Individualism predominates in the 11-room country home of the Dawson Deans, five miles north of Pittsfield on Route 107.

Oak rounds in the stairs leading from the family to the play room are from an old Griggsville hotel and some of the rounds have been incorporated into a built-in buffet. The antique furnished family room is paneled in cherry. Displayed here are family heirlooms, china, spoons and crystal.

Weathered barn siding is used as paneling in the reading room, where bookshelves hold a collection of antique tools, bottles and housewares. Oak, pine and cottonwood weathered board were used in making the bookshelves. Hewed log beams frame this room.

A circus theme decorates the children's nursery and the little girls' room is in white French provincial with canopy beds. A grandfather's clock, dating to 1820, from Nottingham, England, was recently acquired and is in the living room of the Deans' home.

Rev. Delmar Poe Home
Senior citizens know the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Delmar Poe at 531 East Washington street here as the Lon Leonhard place, owners of the property in 1890. The home was built in the early 1880's and among its occupants was a nursing home establishment, until the Poes purchased the property three years ago. Since that time they have restored the home to its original beauty and gradually furnished it with period furniture including some pieces built by Rev. Poe, whose hobby is woodwork.

The property was built by William Smith, father of the late Earl C. Smith, well-known Pike agriculturist.

In the structure are bay windows, marble fireplaces, molded plaster ceiling rosettes, old-fashioned light fixtures, two-toned molded woodwork and door paneling and a winding stairway.

Gold carpeting boldly contrasts with the red flocked wallpaper in the parlor, accenting the intricate gold etch trim on the columned white marble fireplace. Green flocked paper in the dining room blends with the gold carpet of this room which has a beautiful harvest table, eight chairs and a hutch, all made by the head of the house.

To be displayed will be an old cylinder type phonograph with morning glory horn, collection of lady's dress combs, spinning wheel which Mrs. Poe often used with her carding machine and loom.

Modern Sapp Home
Completed just last fall the J. M. Sapp home in Summer Hill is the newest of the five listings for this year's tour. The location is about one-fifth mile east on the gravel road that cuts across Route 54 in Summer Hill at the war monument. This home is tri-level brick with rough siding painted a Colorado russet. The front entrance, on the "second" level is paneled in white and leads to the living room, extending on to the dining room. Both are carpeted in leaf green and draperies in an off-white.

The kitchen-family room is paneled in cherry and has a large white brick fireplace. From this room sliding glass doors lead outside. Integration Report Premature: Mitchell

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's top civil rights enforcer, in a report characterized as premature by Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, says nearly all black children in the South may attend desegregated schools next fall.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerris Leonard, head of the Justice Department's civil rights division, said the integration efforts hinge on the Nixon administration's enforcement plans.

If the plans go well, Leonard said Thursday in a report to a Cabinet committee on school desegregation headed by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, "about 97 per cent of the Negro children in these 11 Southern states will be attending desegregated school systems."

Before the beginning of the last school year, Leonard said, "only 5.2 per cent of 164,273 of the 3.1 million Negro public school students in those 11 states attended schools in unitary or desegregated school systems."

The report, which Leonard termed "dramatic," was distributed to reporters by the Justice Department's public information office but taken back 35 minutes later.

Mitchell then called newsmen into his office and said the report's conclusions were based on raw—and in some instances inaccurate—data. He said its release was premature and had been submitted to the Cabinet panel as a working paper rather than a final report.

The attorney general said Leonard's figures of 97 per cent depended on a number of "imponderables," such as the outcome of pending suits and negotiations between the government and Southern school districts.

Leonard said there are 72 segregated or dual school systems in 11 Southern states that are not under court order, voluntary planning to desegregate, or being sued by the department. A department spokesman said

Four Letter Words Abound

Collegiate Editors Telling It Like It Is

EDITOR'S NOTE—The campus press used to abound in four-letter words like 'soph' and 'prom' and 'frat.' It still does, but now they're pure Anglo-Saxon as collegiate editors are telling it like it is. Here is a look at the situation from the AP Living Today department.

By DICK BLYSTONE
Associated Press Writer

Youth doesn't always say it with flowers. And the collegiate press is getting and passing the word. The four-letter word.

At age 97, the Harvard Crimson does not blush to print an occasional - or -, to mention just a couple.

In turbulent Berkeley, it's not uncommon to find — in the —, Anglo-Saxon flesh anywhere from the editorial page to the sports section of the University of California Daily Californian.

Even on more tranquil campuses, young editors covering an era of heightened social and political passions are spurning genteel circumlocutions and discreet dashes and coming right out with it.

The editors operate under a range of circumstances—from complete financial and editorial independence, as at Harvard, to ultimate accountability to a publications board, as at Kansas State University or the University of Alabama.

Most of those questioned say they rarely if ever feel pressure from authority to leave out four-letter words.

"Nowadays these words have about the shock impact of 'damn,' if that much," says Terry Hill, editor of the Daily Californian editorial page.

"These words are part of the vernacular that the people we're writing for use. We don't go out of our way to use them. But it would be awkward to try to write around so-called dirty words, it would be dishonest and it certainly wouldn't be fair to the readership. The form and content of what people say are pretty well related."

The Californian receives about 40 per cent of its budget through the university but editors say they are free to set their own policy.

Ronald Janis, outgoing executive editor of the Harvard Crimson, says no word is forbidden for the paper, and if there is an objection "the burden of proof would be on the person who wanted to take it out."

"I think we use these words because they're used all the time in daily communication. It certainly doesn't offend any of our student readers."

"I think the obscenity issue is a sham," says Rena Steinzor, editor of the K-State Collegian. "We look at the value of the word. Does it really contribute anything to the story? Is there a better way to make the same point? There are instances where one four-letter word would make a better point than two columns of rhetoric," Messerschmidt says, "but we don't get to that point very often here."

James Morris, director of student publications at Kansas State, says: "We have never prohibited the students from using such words, but we have tried to get around this by discussing it at length with the editors and seeing if it will serve any useful purpose."

Messerschmidt, like many college editors, scorns paraphrasing or blanking out just to avoid using a four-letter word. "I think it's ridiculous for major publications to use, say, 'blank-blank.' Who are they trying to protect?"

FUTURE FARMERS may enjoy the comforts of this tractor introduced at Expo '70 in Japan. Powered by a 25-horsepower engine, tractor has automatic transmission, four-wheel drive and high-flotation, heavy-duty tires. Work progress is monitored in the cab by television cameras at sides and back. Other features include two-way radio, air conditioning, heater and a system for cleaning air pumped into the cab. Finally, operator doesn't even have to be in the machine, for it can be run by remote control.

SHUTTERBUGS IN THE GARDEN. Every garden has its share of bugs along with the roses and rhododendrons. These shutterbugs, a persistent species found in ever-increasing numbers, were photographed at Sterling Forest Gardens in Tuxedo, N.Y., an area where the flora and fauna are designed to attract the breed. At top is the "Crafty Croucher," noted for its fondness for interesting foreground detail. "Stand-up Shooter," bottom left, was caught by a "Crafty Croucher." "Clutching Climber," bottom right, thrives in elevation although its efforts often produce slanted results. Shutterbugs abound at all seasons, but most varieties are sun worshippers and can be seen glancing frequently over their shoulders to be sure it's still there.

Asks Aging Members Resign

Draft Head Aims For Younger Look

WASHINGTON (AP) — Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr, trying to make the Selective Service look younger, has asked aging members of his department to resign.

Although the request was aimed specifically at members of the Selective Service's national and state headquarters, a high-ranking draft official said Tarr's policy could be viewed as a strong hint to elderly state directors as well.

But only one—Henry M. Gross of Pennsylvania, who at 65 is the oldest state director of all—has indicated he will quit, but not until the end of the year.

Although state directors take their orders from Tarr, they owe their appointments to state governors. Tarr is thus faced with the diplomatic problem of easing some of them out, without offending the governors.

President Nixon's appointment of the 45-year-old Tarr to replace Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, 76, as draft director last March was only the beginning of a campaign to lower the age of the Selective Service System.

Tarr quickly applied the principle to his national headquarters, asking the resignation of about 10 per cent of his 236 staff members—civilians over 70 years old and military personnel who have either reached age 60 or are eligible for their maximum retirement benefits.

Tarr recently began applying the same standards to state headquarters with a series of letters asking individuals—or asking their state directors to ask them—to resign.

State directors have requested a few exceptions, but so far Tarr has turned them all down. An official said about 56 "military types" out of some 340 in state headquarters were expected to resign by the end of this year, including 12 who would have retired anyway.

The letters to state directors usually cite "the desires of the President" to make the draft "more responsive and understandable to the youth of the nation."

After asking for the resignation of a specified individual, the Tarr letter concludes: "In submitting a request for his replacement to me for consideration, I would suggest that a young man be considered, one who could present the image of being in tune with the youth of today and their problems."

Such letters actually have gone to only about 16 of the 56 state and other jurisdictional directors, but word generally travels fast through Selective Service's active grapevine.

Tarr, in deference to state governors, has made no overt suggestion that over-aged state directors remove themselves, but an official admitted there was a "strong implication" in the director's general policy.

THE DOCTOR SAYS Avoid Infection Spread By Burning Dressings

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Q—What is staphylococcus?
How is it picked up? What precautions may be taken to prevent its spread?

A—Staphylococcus is the name of the common pus-forming germ. It is often present on the skin and in the nose and does no harm until it enters the body through a break in the skin or mucous membrane.
When you have a boil or an infected cut or bruise, it is important to burn the dressings and not to get the pus on your fingers because that is the quickest way to spread the infection to others or to another part of your body. It helps to wash your hands with a soap that contains hexachlorophene, especially after touching a soiled dressing.

Q—What is a whitlow or a felon and what is suppurative?
A—Whitlow and felon are the same thing—a pus infection of the bone, nail or pulp of the end of a finger. Suppuration is the formation of pus.

Q—What causes carbuncles?
What can be done to prevent them?
A—A carbuncle is a glorified boil—one so large that it has more than one point of drainage. It is caused by a pus-forming germ, usually the staphylococcus. The precipitating cause is often the squeezing of a pimple, blackhead, wen or boil. Prevention is accomplished through cleanliness and prompt antiseptic treatment of all small cuts or skin infections.

Q—What is the best treatment for boils? My son, who is a mechanic, has five of them. He uses a soap prescribed by his doctor but so far it hasn't helped.

A—Multiple or repeated boils should be treated by a physician. To get them under control, an antibiotic, usually one of the penicillins, is given. In stubborn cases a weakened staphylococcus (strain 502A) is implanted on the skin and in the nose where it will overgrow and choke out the most vicious strain.

Q—If it is wise for a woman to have Pap tests, shouldn't a man have a test for early cancer of the prostate?
A—A rectal digital examination is the simplest and most widely used way to detect cancer of the prostate, but many urologists have a Pap test made of the urinary sediment after a prostatic massage. They find this to be a valuable diagnostic procedure.

Nail Polish Brings Sheen Back To Pearl Buttons

By POLLY CRAMER
DEAR POLLY—Mrs. E.D. wanted to know how she could bring back the sheen to pearl buttons that have become dull from laundering. I suggest clear nail polish. If that makes them too glossy, try the frosty clear, which might look better. They can be retouched any time it is needed.

Thanks for the reminder,

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—While attending a kitchen shower for a bride-to-be, one of the guests presented an attractive "corsage" made of various kitchen utensils. Among them were several scouring pads made from colorful plastic onion bags. I would like to know how to make these scouring pads and such corsages, too.—MRS. D.G.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Can
"Bracken's World" keep up with the fast-moving world of Hollywood? Producer Stanley
Rubin thinks so, and he's making changes in the television series accordingly.

"Bracken's World" had a rocky start in its first season on NBC. Some critics scoffed that its portrayal of life inside a major studio was both soap-operatic and anachronistic. Eleanor Parker, the series' principal star, walked out in midseason with the claim that she had little to do.

Ratings were disappointing.
The audience seemed confused
by the immense cast—11 regulars in all. But as the performers became more familiar, the ratings began to rise. Although "Bracken's World" remained far from a hit, NBC was enough encouraged to renew the 20th Century-Fox production for the 1970-71 season.

The series, some say, portrays studios as they used to be —big, busy, aswarm with actors. Since it began, Hollywood production is a trickle, studio contract lists all but nil. Independents turn out much of the product.

The biggest change in the series will be to bring studio boss John Bracken onstage—in the first season he was merely a shadowy figure whose decisions were delivered like messages from Mt. Olympus. Bracken will be portrayed by Leslie Nielsen.
"The way we see him," said Rubin, "is not as a Harry Cohn, a Jack Warner, a Louis B. Mayer or any of the old-time studio bosses. He is a man who has grown up in the movie business, is now in his mid-40s, and has been a film maker himself, in charge of European production."
He has gone to college and is cosmopolitan in his outlook. He is the new breed of studio head,
like a John Calley (Warners), a Richard Zanuck (Fox), or a Bob Evans (Paramount)."

DEAR POLLY—After the family has gone to bed, I like to "pick up" the cluttered living room so when the sun comes up I will have at least one straight room. After washing any snack trays, carrying out the pop bottles and newspapers,
I was always faced with full ash trays, which I was afraid to empty, so I always left them.
One night, I decided I could not bear to smell the stale contents, so I took them to the kitchen and looked around to see how I could safely dispose of them. I dumped all the contents of the ash trays in the center of a piece of aluminum foil,
folded it up to make a neat,
air-tight, package, then squeezed this in my hand. No more worrying! I washed the ash trays and went to bed with a clear mind.—JUDY

DEAR JUDY—A dash of baking soda over the ashes and cigarette butts would be a bit of double insurance if you are not too sure about any remaining sparks. Why not ask each one of the family to carry his own tray and bottle back to the kitchen before taking off for bed—not much for them to do and would save you some steps?
—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—While sewing
on the machine, I discovered that the material was being nulled. I sharpened my old needle with an emery board, just as though I was sharpening a pencil, and the needle worked like new.—G.C.G.

With Poised Pencil,
Awaiting Quote

By LEE MUELLER
NEW YORK (NEA)—It is said that during times of trial, President Warren G. Harding often withdrew into a White House closet to contemplate decisions and other matters at hand.
Harry S. Truman once likened the presidency to riding a tiger. "A man has to keep on riding now include my little dog, Fala, or be swallowed," he said. "A president is constantly on top of events or, if he hesitates, the events will soon be on top of him."
President Lincoln, discussing increasing pressure on his office during the Civil War, stated: "If I were to try to read, much less answer, all the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for any other business."
Franklin D. Roosevelt occu-piated the White House long enough to become accustomed to the relentless criticism that goes with the address—well, most of it, anyway.

"These Republican leaders have not been content with attacks on me, or my wife, or on my sons," he said in 1944. "No, not content with that, they now include my little dog, Fala, or be swallowed," he said. "A president is constantly on top of events or, if he hesitates, the events will soon be on top of him."
Finally, Lyndon B. Johnson (and several others) calls the presidency "the loneliest job in the world."
Now the time apparently has come for Richard Nixon to step forth and utter something memorable about the rigors of the office. Certainly, conditions favor it.

The gulf between America's establishment thinkers and America's liberal thinkers has grown as big as Joan Baez's mouth. Or Vice-President Agnew's mouth. Or—if you care to imagine such things—both their mouths put together, which isn't likely.
Anyway, the war, the stock market, labor problems, the effete snobs, campus uprisings and an allegedly unfriendly press have combined to create ideal conditions for President Nixon coming out with some indelible comment.

Any day now it might happen. Up at Bartlett's Familiar Quotations in Boston, the folks are waiting with poised pencils. "I haven't got anything I can give you yet," says Emily Morrison Beck, the book's editor. Mrs. Beck also works for Atlantic Monthly and says her political posture leans toward the old-fashioned, noncommunist left.

"Personally," she said, "I'm so appalled at Mr. Nixon's speeches that I can hardly listen to them."

Professionally, she says, the President has yet to say anything suitable for sewing into a sampler or for including in Bartlett's collection of passages, phrases and proverbs.

Vice-President Agnew, in fact—with a smattering of what Mrs. Beck calls "juicy phrases"—is deemed more quotable than the President, although she thinks both can be pretty awful. "Some presidents are more quotable than others," she explains. "During the Revolutionary period, presidents were more quotable simply because they were better-read in the classics. Most were eloquent in Latin and Greek."

"Other presidents have been influenced by one form of literature or another. President Lincoln, for example, was very well-read in the Bible."

"Mr. Nixon, as far as I can tell, has no literary style whatsoever."

The President should not despair, however, for time has a way of bringing importance to seemingly innocuous statements. "It's important to get perspective in books like Bartlett's," Mrs. Beck said.

Take, for example, Herbert Hoover's soothing comment after the stock market crash that "the fundamental strength of the nation's economy is unimpaired."
It makes one wonder, perhaps a little uneasily, about President Nixon's promise to remove troops from Cambodia by the end of June. On the other hand, it might be just the thing he needs for inclusion into Bartlett's.

Why pay up to $259* more for a compact when Maverick gives you all this?

Why pay more when Maverick saves you money right from the start? And however you figure it... size, power, economy... Maverick gives you more in the bargain!

Maverick is no lightweight. Its wide tread and stability makes for a sure grip on the road. Yet there's no excess weight to cause acceleration lag or reduce fuel economy.

Maverick is perky. Some competitive makes have four cylinders. Maverick's got a 170 CID six-cylinder that delivers 105 hp. It gets you up to expressway speeds in less than 15 seconds... without getting you in hock at the gas pumps.

Maverick is economical to drive. Test drivers averaged 22.5 mpg in simulated actual driving conditions. This means you could go up to 350 miles or more between gas stops.

Maverick is simple to park. It's less than 15 feet long and has a turning diameter of only 35.6 feet. So you can nip in and out of tight parking spots and tough traffic, easier than the big guys.

Maverick is simple to maintain. You can do it yourself. The Maverick Owner's Manual is packed with simple diagrams and instructions.

Maverick is easy to own. So easy, in fact, with its low, low price, that you can even move up to a jazzy Maverick Grabber and still beat that compact price.

Maverick is America's biggest selling small car. And that means you can expect top dollar resale value when it comes time to trade. Maverick just doesn't know how to stop saving for you.

Five alumni of Illinois College have been selected to receive alumni citations for "Distinguished Public Service" as part of the college's annual commencement week activities. The awards will be given as part of the program for the Alumni Luncheon which is scheduled for Sunday noon in Baxter Hall on the campus.

They are: Ray L. Broekel, class of 1947, an administrator with the juvenile division of Addison-Wesley Publishing Co. in Reading, Mass.; Kenneth A. No Title

The president of the United States is distinguished by having no title. A governor is addressed as "Your Excellency," a judge as "Your Honor," but the chief executive of the nation is simply "Mr. President."

In Pursuit of the NEW ESTABLISHMENT

In the '40s, you were the war babies. In the '60s, you were the student protesters. In the '70s, many of you will be raising babies of your own.

We're talking about you, the 50 million Americans, age 18 to 34, who never lived through a depression, but who are living the history of an unprecedented era of change in everything, from politics to education to life style.

You are the reason our Associated Press created a "new establishment" of its own — the specialized team of young reporters you see here. They are part of the new scene and they probe everywhere to tell contemporary America about itself, factually and in depth.

They give you (as well as the generation on the other side of the gap) more reason than ever to rely on your daily newspaper for the story of what's young in America.

Their stories appear in . . .

Business — Market Wrapup

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — What's the matter with Detroit? More precisely, what's the matter with the Big Three automotive companies, among the mightiest enterprises of industrial society?

Asked this question, anyone is entitled to one of his own: Where do you begin? With depressed profits? With annual meeting challenges? Safety? Pollution? Sagging stock prices? Dealer franchise problems?

All major issues, but can any problem of the automotive industry be more directly tied to profits—and to the imbalance in U.S. foreign payments—than the surprising challenge of foreign imports?

Sales of foreign cars in the United States were higher in May than in any month on record, according to a Wall Street Journal survey. It showed deliveries of 109,000 cars and indications of another year of one million-plus sales for foreign manufacturers.

Most of these foreign manufacturers are Davids compared with the Detroit Goliaths, but quite clearly the Davids are slinging it to their bigger adversaries.

Toyota sales rose 45.9 per cent over May 1969. Volkswagen rose 4.8. Datsun 42.8. Volvo 30.1. Curiously, sales of Opel, the General Motors import from Germany, decreased 22.7 per cent. All are compact cars.

Why is it that so many foreign companies can sell profitably in the United States while only three U.S. automakers—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—can show consistent profits?

More to the point, how can foreign companies design cars so greatly desired in the American market while domestic companies, which pride themselves on market research, miss so obvious an opportunity for sales?

While it is difficult to explain the questions, it is possible to suggest that when Detroit puts its mind to work—when it designs cars smaller than the conventional models—it can slow the foreign inroads.

Early in the 1960s it did just that. Detroit decided to turn out smaller cars in volume to meet foreign competition, which consisted mainly of small editions. As a result, the percentage of imports to total U.S. sales fell in 1960, 1961 and 1962.

Then Detroit regressed to an old habit. It began to enlarge the size of its compacts. Not content with enticing owners to "buy up" into larger models, it began building the compacts themselves into larger models.

In every year since 1962 the percentage of imports to total sales of cars increased, reaching 11 per cent last year. And in every year from 1962 to 1967 Detroit turned out fewer compacts in relation to total production.

In 1968 the American manufacturers began an attempt to reverse the trend by, once again, returning to compact production. But some foreign cars now have a foothold in the market and a reputation that may make it difficult to slam the door. Can Detroit do it?

Americans may not have to wait long for an answer. The percentage of smaller cars coming out of Detroit is rising again, and some automotive men are confident that the foreign tide may have at least been stemmed if not turned back.

Foreign car importers remained confident, however. Their reputations in some instances are as solidly established as those of the Big Three. And their marketing ingenuity cannot again be underestimated.

And then there remains that perplexing manifestation of the Detroit syndrome, that cars must be enlarged or embellished regardless of what the market demands.

The situation suggests two other questions:
Will Detroit fall into the same habit again?

WIDE BUYING IN SOYBEAN FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP) — A strong demand for soybean meal and, secondarily, soybeans, influenced wide buying of these commodity futures on the Chicago Board of Trade the past week and produced sharply higher prices.

Seasonal highs were set in most beans and meal contracts. Corn and oats futures posted small advances but wheat and rye closed generally weak. Soybean oil also was weak when trade ended Friday, but choice steers improved a few points while iced broilers were irregular.

Soybean futures closed up to 4 cents a bushel higher for the week, although the gain at one time topped 6 cents. Soy meal closed out 35 points higher, or $3.85 a ton more than last Friday, and also represented a trimming off the week's high of around $4.50 a ton.

When trade had ended on Friday, wheat futures were 1/4 cent a bushel lower to 1 1/4 higher. July 1.34 1/4; corn was 3/4 to 1 1/4 higher. July 1.30 1/4; oats were 1/2 to 1 cent higher, July 65 1/2 cents; rye was 1 to 1 1/4 cents lower, July 1.05 1/4; and soybeans were 3 to 4 cents higher, July 2.73 1/4.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took a rough beating Friday that sent the Dow Jones industrial average skidding some 11.50 points to 695.03 at the close.

Declining issues led winners on the New York Stock Exchange by a margin of more than 4 to 1 in moderately active trading.

The tumble in prices occurred in the face of heavy profit-taking on hefty gains amassed in a recent rally and of unconfirmed reports of threatening words and actions from Asian Communist nations.

A rally that began a week ago last Wednesday sent the Dow Jones industrial average soaring some 82 points over a six session period. The spell was broken Thursday when the market sank under the ressure of profit-taking. The decline sent the Dow average down 7.33 points.

The market behaved in yo-yo like fashion Friday. The industrial average had skidded 12.05 points in the morning session. The Dow was behind only 4.11 points, however by 12:30 p.m.

An hour later, following the disquieting Asian reports, the blue-chip indicator was off 8.69 points.

The Friday session marked the first time in a week that the Dow had slipped below the 700 level.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common stocks slipped 0.70 to 41.66. The Associated Press 60-stock average sank 3.5 to 241.4. Industrials were off 4.7, rails off 2.5 and utilities off 1.1. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index declined 1.19 to 76.17.

Declines ran through virtually all of the AP's corporate categories. Glamour issues were generally lower. The exceptions in the glamour category included Texaco, up 1/4 at 14 1/4, and Xerox, up 1/4 at 80 1/4.

Of the 1,562 issues traded on the Big Board, 1,118 declined and 255 advanced. New yearly lows were touched by 42 issues and a new high by only one.

Big Board volume declined to 12.45 million shares from 14.38 million shares Thursday.

Prices on the Big Board's most active list included Litton, off 1/4 at 19; Fairchild Camera, off 1/4 at 30 1/2; Boeing, off 1/4 at 15 1/4; and Westinghouse, off 1/4 at 61 1/4.

The American Stock Exchange index declined .25 to 20.99. Of the 1,049 issues traded, 753 declined while 141 advanced. Volume declined to 4.57 million shares from 5.25 million shares Thursday.

Dr. Schacht, Hitler Adviser Dies At 93

MUNICH (AP) — Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, who shored up Germany's currency after World War I and later helped pave the way for Adolf Hitler's rise to power, has died at the age of 93.

A family spokesman said Thursday that Schacht broke his hip in a fall last week and died of complications Wednesday.

As president of the Reichsbank in 1923, Schacht put the virtually worthless German mark on the gold standard and normalized the nation's money market. He became Hitler's economics minister in 1934, but resigned in 1937 and was acquitted at Nuremberg of war crimes.

He joined Hitler's Cabinet the next year but resigned in 1937 and then fell steadily in Hitler's graces. He was arrested in 1944 and kept in a concentration camp until the war's end.

After his acquittal at Nuremberg, the West German government held him until 1948, and in 1950 he was exonerated under the de-Nazification program.

Consider Total Costs When Buying A Pool

By RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

Take a look at last Sunday's paper. The odds are you'll find several ads designed to reinforce the belief that you just can't get through another summer without a swimming pool.

And perhaps you can't. Three-quarters of a million Americans now own in-the-ground pools. Some 2 1/2 million more own portable pools set in above-ground frames. There is no doubt that the family pool is no longer limited to the well-to-do.

But if you don't own a pool, and you're thinking of getting one, beware. As with an automobile, the purchase price is only the beginning.

In fact, purchase of a pool initiates any number of other demands about which there is little choice. For example: Safety—Your new pool is going to be a center of attraction. It will get admiring glances from all your friends and endless visits from every kid in the neighborhood. Your friends will be old enough to look after themselves, but you'll need a fence to guarantee that kids will only enter the pool when you O.K. it.

A kid-tight fence will probably cost a couple hundred dollars. Maintenance—Regular maintenance chores begin the day you first dip your big toe. And they never end. Mostly, they involve work, but there is expense, too.

Chemical treatments are required to control bacteria, algae and acid balance. Chemicals are inexpensive, but month in and month out they'll amount to a tidy sum. A pool must also be vacuumed weekly.

Over a period of several years, pools need expensive rejuvenation. Those with vinyl liners may need a full replacement. Concrete pools will need a repainting every year or two.

Business — Market Wrapup

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — What's the matter with Detroit? More precisely, what's the matter with the Big Three automotive companies, among the mightiest enterprises of industrial society?

Asked this question, anyone is entitled to one of his own: Where do you begin? With depressed profits? With annual production challenges? Safety? Pollution? Sagging stock prices? Dealer franchise problems?

All major issues, but can any problem of the automotive industry be more directly tied to profits—and to the imbalance in U.S. foreign payments—than the surprising challenge of foreign imports?

Sales of foreign cars in the United States were higher in May than in any month on record, according to a Wall Street Journal survey. It showed deliveries of 109,000 cars and indications of another year of one million-plus sales for foreign manufacturers.

Most of these foreign manufacturers are Davids compared with the Detroit Goliaths, but quite clearly the Davids are slinging it to their bigger adversaries.

Toyota sales rose 45.9 per cent over May 1969. Volkswagen rose 4.8, Datsun 42.8, Volvo 30.1. Curiously, sales of Opel, the General Motors import from Germany, decreased 22.7 per cent. All are compact cars.

Why is it that so many foreign companies can sell profitably in the United States while only three U.S. automakers—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—can show consistent profits?

More to the point, how can foreign companies design cars so greatly desired in the American market while domestic companies, which pride themselves on market research, miss so obvious an opportunity for sales?

While it is difficult to explain the questions, it is possible to suggest that when Detroit puts its mind to work—when it designs cars smaller than the conventional models—it can slow the foreign inroads.

Early in the 1960s it did just that. Detroit decided to turn out smaller cars in volume to meet foreign competition, which consisted mainly of small editions. As a result, the percentage of imports to total U.S. sales fell in 1960, 1961 and 1962.

Then Detroit regressed to an old habit. It began to enlarge the size of its compacts. Not content with enticing owners to "buy up" into larger models, it began building the compacts themselves into larger models.

In every year since 1962 the percentage of imports to total sales of cars increased, reaching 11 per cent last year. And in every year from 1962 to 1967 Detroit turned out fewer compacts in relation to total production.

In 1968 the American manufacturers began an attempt to reverse the trend by, once again, returning to compact production. But some foreign cars now have a foothold in the market and a reputation that may make it difficult to slam the door. Can Detroit do it?

Americans may not have to wait long for an answer. The percentage of smaller cars coming out of Detroit is rising again, and some automotive men are confident that the foreign tide may have at least been stemmed if not turned back.

Foreign car importers remained confident, however. Their reputations in some instances are as solidly established as those of the Big Three. And their marketing ingenuity cannot again be underestimated.

And then there remains that perplexing manifestation of the Detroit syndrome, that cars must be enlarged or embellished regardless of what the market demands.

The situation suggests two other questions:
Will Detroit fall into the same habit again?

WIDE BUYING IN SOYBEAN FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP) — A strong demand for soybean meal and, secondarily, soybeans, influenced wide buying of these commodity futures on the Chicago Board of Trade the past week and produced sharply higher prices.

Seasonal highs were set in most beans and meal contracts. Corn and oats futures posted small advances but wheat and rye closed generally weak. Soybean oil also was weak when trade ended Friday, but choice steers improved a few points while feed broilers were irregular.

Soybean futures closed up to 4 cents a bushel higher for the week, although the gain at one time topped 6 cents. Soy meal closed out 385 points higher, or $3.85 a ton more than last Friday, and also represented a trimming off the week's high of around $4.50 a ton.

When trade had ended on Friday, wheat futures were 1/4 cent a bushel lower to 1 1/4 higher.

July 1.34 1/4; corn was 3/4 to 1 1/4 higher.

July 1.30 1/4; oats were 3/4 to 1 cent higher.

July 65 1/2; rye was 1 to 1 1/4 cents lower.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took a rough beating Friday that sent the Dow Jones industrial average skidding some 11.50 points to 695.03 at the close.

Declining issues led winners on the New York Stock Exchange by a margin of more than 4 to 1 in moderately active trading.

The tumble in prices occurred in the face of heavy profit-taking on hefty gains amassed in a recent rally and of unconfirmed reports of threatening words and actions from Asian Communist nations.

A rally that began a week ago last Wednesday sent the Dow Jones industrial average soaring some 82 points over a six session period. The spell was broken Thursday when the market sank under the ressure of profit-taking. The decline sent the Dow average down 7.33 points.

The market behaved in a yo-yo like fashion Friday. The industrial average had skidded 12.05 points in the morning session. The Dow was behind only 4.11 points, however by 12:30 p.m.

An hour later, following the disquieting Asian reports, the blue-chip indicator was off 8.69 points.

The Friday session marked the first time in a week that the Dow had slipped below the 700 level.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common stocks slipped 0.70 to 41.66. The Associated Press 60-stock average sank 3.5 to 241.4. Industrials were off 4.7, rails off 2.5 and utilities off 1.1. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index declined 1.19 to 76.17.

Declines ran through virtually all of the AP's corporate categories. Glamour issues were generally lower. The exceptions in the glamour category included Texaco, up 1/4 at 14 1/4, and Xerox, up 1/4 at 80 3/4.

Of the 1,562 issues traded on the Big Board, 1,118 declined and 255 advanced. New yearly lows were touched by 44 issues and a new high by only one.

Big Board volume declined to 12.45 million shares from 14.38 million shares Thursday. Prices on the Big Board's most active list included: Litton, off 1/4 at 19; Fairchild Camera, off 1/4 at 30 1/4; Boeing, off 1/4 at 15 1/4; and Westinghouse, off 1/4 at 61 1/4.

The American Stock Exchange index declined .25 to 20.99. Of the 1,049 issues traded, 753 declined while 141 advanced. Volume declined to 4.57 million shares from 5.25 million shares Thursday.

Dr. Schacht, Hitler Adviser Dies At 93

MUNICH (AP) — Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, who shored up Germany's currency after World War I and later helped pave the way for Adolf Hitler's rise to power, has died at the age of 93.

A family spokesman said Thursday that Schacht broke his hip in a fall last week and died of complications Wednesday.

As president of the Reichsbank in 1933, Schacht put the virtually worthless German mark on the gold standard and normalized the nation's money market. He became Hitler's economics minister in 1934, but resigned in 1937 and was acquitted at Nuremberg of war crimes.

He joined Hitler's Cabinet the next year but resigned in 1937 and then fell steadily in Hitler's graces. He was arrested in 1944 and kept in a concentration camp until the war's end.

After his acquittal at Nuremberg, the West German government held him until 1948, and in 1950 he was exonerated under the de-Nazification program.

Consider Total Costs When Buying A Pool

By RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

Take a look at last Sunday's paper. The odds are you'll find several ads designed to reinforce the belief that you just can't get through another summer without a swimming pool.

Lodge Named Emissary To Vatican

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced Friday he is making Henry Cabot Lodge his personal emissary to the Vatican—but without giving him a formal diplomatic title.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Lodge will be going to the Vatican two or three times a year as required and may remain there as long as a month on each occasion.

The question of American diplomatic representation at the Vatican has been a source of recurrent controversy and it seemed apparent that Nixon wants to have the benefits of regular contacts with Pope Paul VI and other church leaders without inviting a Senate battle that might spring from a formal diplomatic nomination.

Lodge, a former Massachusetts senator, was the 1960 Republican candidate for vice president. Later, he served as ambassador to Vietnam and as head of the Vietnam peace negotiators in Paris.

Ziegler described Lodge's assignment, which he will perform without salary, as providing "greater continuity in the informal contacts which already have been taking place" since the President took office.

A handful of administration officials, including Nixon himself, have met with the Pope since January 1969.

Lodge, who will make his first trip to Rome later this month, will find "suitable living and office arrangements there," Ziegler said. Lodge will not operate out of the U.S. embassy in Rome.

Ziegler was uncertain whether the unofficial envoy would have a permanent staff.

Responding to a question, Ziegler said he would not relate Lodge's role in Paris and the Vatican assignment.

State Preamble Sets Up Fight Against Poverty

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The new Illinois Constitution's preamble — called its sermon to the people — was tentatively adopted Friday to call on the state to eliminate poverty and inequality.

The new preamble was adopted on first reading by a vote of 61 to 9. Three more readings are required.

Delegate Samuel Patch of Chicago said it was "a more positive stand" to say inequality shall be eliminated than to say there shall be equality.

"We talk about the opportunity to pull yourself up by your bootstraps," Patch said. "How about those who don't have any boots?"

Instead of the words of the present 1870 Constitution—which say it was created to establish justice — the new preamble would say: "establish and assure legal, social and economic justice."

Other new words added say the Constitution is ordained to "provide for the fullest development of the individual."

Instead of the present preamble's call to "secure the blessings of liberty," the new preamble would say "liberty and freedom."

The convention also adopted a bill of rights section reasserting the right of the individual to just compensation determined by a jury, when private property is taken for public use.

The convention adjourned until Tuesday. The next bill of rights section deals with discrimination.
